Jan has a shop.
She sells shoes.

Two nice mice are in the shop.
They like Jan.

A man comes in.
Jan will help him get shoes.

Jan looks for her glasses.
She needs them to see well.

Jan's glasses are under her desk.
But she does not see them.

Jan wants to help the man.
She gets some shoes, but they don't fit
the man.
Some are too big. Some are too small.

“Oh, my,” said Jan. “I need my glasses!”
“I will come back,” the man said.

Jan goes to get her lunch.
The nice mice come out.
They put the glasses on the desk.

Jan comes back and sees her glasses.
“There they are!” she said.

The man comes back.
Jan has her glasses on.
Now she can see the shoes!

She gets the man some shoes.
The shoes fit!
Jan and the man are happy.
The nice mice are happy, too.
